

Donate those t-shirts and polo shirts that no longer fit (or you never really liked, anyway)!

The Clothesline Project is a way for women who have experienced domestic and/or sexual violence to share their thoughts and feelings in an anonymous way. It is also a way of educating the community that yes, these things do occur. You may have seen Clothesline

Project displays throughout the community in April. Community and Family Services is gathering supplies to create our own Clothesline Project workshops, and we need your help. We need t-shirts and polo shirts, in infant through adult sizes, in the following colors: Pink, red, orange, yellow, brown/tan, blue, green, navy blue, lavender/purple, black, and white. (We can always dye white t-shirts in colors we need.) They can have printing/pictures on them, because we can turn the t-shirts inside-out or use the unprinted side. All we ask is that they not have holes or rips.

Here is the perfect opportunity to get rid of those t-shirts and polo shirts that no longer fit, and the ones you never really liked or wore. And you can feel good about them being useful for someone else!

Collection bins will be at the Community and Family Services office and at the Main Office. If you would like more information, please contact Judith at CFS (x3134). Thank you!
